Glenn,

It was really a pleasure seeing you again with Brad. Recalling funny things that happened to us while performing in the music business was both enjoyable and interesting.

The Steinway Art Grand piano that you have restored brings back personal memories about when I was playing flute with the Phoenix Symphony Orchestra.

In the early 60's, a small Orchestra comprised of members from the Phoenix Symphony Orchestra were hired to perform a concert in the small theatre at Mr. Wright's home. This was primarily a concert to accompany Frank Lloyd Wright's daughter, "Iovanna". We played this concert once a year for two or three years.

The piano you now have has to be the one they moved from the main house to use in those concerts. What a great sound, especially in the low bass. It's what I remember when "Iovanna" was working with just the piano.

Anyway, thanks and maybe again sometime.

Sincerely,

Chuck Craig
